Any transfer of information to our partners assisting in the storage and security of your information is strictly regulated. All information is securely stored within Australia and we ensure that any third party partners adhere to our requirements in respect of the privacy and security of your information. We will disclose your personal information in order to respond to legal or legislative requirements, to assist with the investigation of fraud or other criminal activity (where a verified request has been made by a law enforcement agency) and to enforce our policies or Terms and Conditions.

How secure is your information?

We encrypt the transmission of information from your website browser to our provider's website server to ensure that the information remains as secure as possible. Information stored on our servers is stored in Australia and the access to information is restricted. We have strict policies and encryption levels to prevent access to your information by our employees unless required to provide you with support and other services. Where possible even where access to your information is required to provide you with support services, we will seek and record your specific consent to that access.

We will take reasonable steps to delete or destroy your personal information if you request us to do so because you no longer use our site.
